

Contributions to International Relations

Hannah Broecker

Securitisation as Hegemonic Discourse Formation

An Integrative Model

Springer

Contributions to International Relations

This book series offers an outlet for cutting-edge research on all areas of international relations. Contributions to International Relations (CIR) welcomes theoretically sound and empirically robust monographs, edited volumes and handbooks from various disciplines and approaches on topics such as IR-theory, international security studies, foreign policy, peace and conflict studies, international organization, global governance, international political economy, the history of international relations and related fields.

Hannah Broecker

Securitisation as Hegemonic Discourse Formation

An Integrative Model

 Springer

Hannah Broecker
Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München
Munich, Germany

ISSN 2731-5061 ISSN 2731-507X (electronic)
Contributions to International Relations
ISBN 978-3-031-16205-3 ISBN 978-3-031-16206-0 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-031-16206-0>

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive license to Springer Nature Switzerland AG 2022

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors, and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, expressed or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

This Springer imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG
The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

This work is dedicated to Ulanna.

Acknowledgments

The research project which has led to this work has been a long and at times difficult one of bringing insights from different academic perspectives and traditions into a coherent whole. On this path, it has benefitted from the support of a number of people to whom I owe my deep gratitude.

I want to thank Thorsten Bonacker and Andreas Langenohl who have contributed to the progress of this work through discussions, critical feedback, and important questions and suggestions. I also want to thank Hubert Zimmermann for giving me the opportunity to work on this project and whose ideas have contributed to the early conception of this work.

Beyond this, both the work of and discussions with Eva Herschinger have been very insightful and a great motivational support to this work. Similarly, discussions with and critical feedback from Mark Duffield have been both an enrichment on the level of content and a reminder to the normative side of analyzing (world) politics from a critical perspective and with a view to one's own role within it. For that, I am deeply thankful.

I also want to thank a number of friends and colleagues who have engaged with and discussed aspects of this work. First among these is Tamara Musfeld who has introduced me to the work of Michel Foucault as well as Ernesto Laclau and Chantal Mouffe who has been a wonderful support over many years. Without these contributions the work would likely not have taken the shape it did. Beyond this, I want to thank Christian Wenzel, who has read and commented on an entire chapter of this work drawing on his expertise in the field of history as well as many other colleagues for their contributions in discussions.

Special thanks are also due to my parents whose various forms of support have been crucial at many stages of the process.

Last but certainly not least, very special thanks are extended to Dennis Kaltwasser who has been a constant source of support—both intellectually and emotionally—and who has contributed many very helpful and important insights to difficult questions in countless and tireless discussions over the years.

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Aims	5
1.2	Contents	6
	Bibliography	8
2	On the Origins and Nature of Meaning	11
2.1	Modelling Securitisation Through Linguistic Speech Act Theory	13
2.2	Fundamentals of Linguistic Speech Act Theory	15
2.2.1	The Translation of Linguistic Speech Act Theory to Securitisation	18
2.2.2	Social Theory Adaptations of Linguistic Speech Act Theory	31
2.2.3	The Second Generation of Securitisation Theory	33
2.3	Securitisation in the Paris School: Routinised Practices	38
2.4	Aspects of a Use-Based Approach to the Construction of Meaning	39
	Bibliography	42
3	Investigating the Meaning of Security	45
3.1	Hobbes and the Original Myth of State-Centric Security	46
3.2	Death and Order as Core Aspects of Security in Hobbesian Political Philosophy	47
3.2.1	Security as Physical Survival	47
3.2.2	Order and the Figure of the Judge: A Cure for Insecurity	55
3.3	Sovereignty as Security of the State	57
3.3.1	Modern Academic Discourse	59
3.3.2	Domestic Sovereignty	61
3.3.3	International Sovereignty	62
3.3.4	Debates About the Non-applicability of Sovereignty	63

3.3.5	The Co-constitution of Sovereign Units: A Critique	66
3.3.6	Historical Developments: Central Aspects of State Formation in Europe	67
3.3.7	Accumulation and Centralisation of Military and Economic Power	69
3.3.8	Property and Sovereignty: Co-dependence of Accumulation and Centralisation of Coercive and Financial Means	77
3.3.9	Centralisation of Control	81
3.4	Conclusion to the Meaning of Security	85
	Bibliography	86
4	Securitisation as Hegemonic Discourse Formation	91
4.1	Security and Discursive Order	93
4.1.1	Post-structuralist Perspectives on Security	93
4.1.2	Discursive Order in Securitisation Approaches	96
4.2	Discourse and Hegemony in the Essex School	100
4.3	(De-)Securitisation as (Counter-)Hegemonic Projects	107
4.3.1	The Translation of Analytical Categories	108
4.3.2	Hegemony, Securitisation and De-securitisation	111
4.4	The Constitution of Power	118
4.4.1	The Conception of Power in Securitisation Approaches . . .	120
4.4.2	Power (and the Likelihood of Success) in Hegemony Theory	127
4.4.3	Agency and Structure	131
4.4.4	Conclusions on Power	138
4.5	Securitisation, the Political and Politicisation	139
4.5.1	The Political in Post-Structural Hegemony Approaches . . .	140
4.5.2	Securitisation, the Political and Politicisation	145
4.5.3	Success and Multimodality in Securitisation as Hegemonic Discourse Formation	146
4.6	Conclusion to Securitisation as Hegemonic Discourse Formation . .	149
	Bibliography	152
5	The Development-Security Nexus: A Case Study	157
5.1	Historical Roots of the Security-Development Nexus	159
5.2	Co-constructing Antagonist Entities: The Proper Order of Society	164
5.2.1	Constructing ‘Underdevelopment’: The Failure of the Deviant and Dangerous Other	166
5.2.2	Co-constructing ‘Development’: The Representation of Order	169
5.2.3	Equivalences: The Construction of Antagonist Entities—Development/Security and Underdevelopment/Insecurity	178

- 5.3 Dislocations and Counter-Hegemonic Discourses 179
 - 5.3.1 Critiques Concerning Empirical Links 181
 - 5.3.2 Critiques from the Perspective of Geopolitics and Global Political Economy 185
 - 5.3.3 Normative and Epistemological Critiques 203
 - 5.3.4 The Logics of the Security-Development Nexus: Between Dislocations and the Hegemonic Discourse 211
- 5.4 The Power of Securitisation: Relations of Governance in the Development-Security Nexus 215
- 5.5 Conclusion to the Security-Development Nexus 223
- Bibliography 224
- 6 Conclusion 235